1,000 Soldiers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Douglas, March 10.—After a battle lasting from Saturday morning until yesterday afternoon 800 state troops today held Nacozeni. The 250 Huerta soldiers defending the town are retreating to Agua Prieta. This news was received here today when communication was restored below this point.

The capture of Nacozeni opens the road, it is believed, to Agua Prieta, and if the latter town is taken the insurgent troops can march westward along the border encountering only small garrisons at Nogales, Naco and other small towns.

Raise Large Army.
At one of the ports on the Sonora-Arizona border there are more than 300 federal troops. All the Huerta soldiers in northern Sonora do not exceed 1,000 men, it was said today on good authority, while the state government in its revolt against the provisional president within a few days has raised an army of nearly 10,000 men, according to carefully compiled figures made up from the reports of the various state troops leaders.

At Nacozeni are the hundred men under Prefect Bracamonte of Mocuzuma. There were only 250 troops defending Nacozeni when the attack was made Saturday.

Similarly small garrisons defend Agua Prieta, Nogales and Naco, while another strong rebel troop from Magdalena, below Nogales, is reported as moving to the border, to assist in attacking the ports of entry.

Carranza Active.
Mexico City, March 10.—A force of 500 followers of Venustiano Carranza, the rebel governor of the state of Coahuila, today threatened the town of Lazaro.

Vicente Segura, a retired millionaire matador, who several months ago purchased a supply of arms and ammunition at New Orleans to aid the revolt started by Felix Diaz at Vera Cruz, has turned over the bill of lading for these supplies to the Mexican government, which will have them delivered to the federal army fighting against the rebels in the northern states.

At Mining Camp.
Douglas, Ariz., March 10.—The mining camp at El Tigre, forty miles southeast of Douglas, last night fell into the hands of 150 state troops. The 100 federals of the garrison fleeing toward the border were overtaken by the constitutionalists who captured their arms, ammunition and artillery after a sharp skirmish.

Added Proof.
Douglas, March 10.—Added proof of the capture of Nacozeni the first victory for the insurgent state troops in Sonora, came today with the arrival at Agua Prieta of a special train bearing 175 defeated federals. Lieutenant Colonel Lopez, federal commander a passenger on the train, had been shot through the neck and was in a critical condition. 20 soldiers were wounded and are being cared for at Agua Prieta.

No Americans were hurt in the attack except J. S. Williams, Jr., a mining man who was shot through the leg on the first day of the attack.

The federals admitted that Nacozeni is in complete control. General Ojeda declared today that he will not evacuate Agua Prieta unless he receives such orders from Mexico City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Berlin, March 10.—Prussia and, in fact nearly all Germany, is en fête today in celebration of the hundredth anniversary of Prussia's war of liberation against Napoleon. The celebration will continue through the greater part of the week. From the capital down to the smallest village and hamlet business was at a standstill today while the populace gave itself up to the joyousness of the occasion.

The great event of the day was the solemn service in the cathedral, where the Emperor, surrounded by all the princes of the royal house, ministers of state and military and naval dignitaries, was the central figure. After the divine services the Emperor reviewed a parade of the troops.

All the public buildings in the city were decked in the most elaborate manner. The decorations of Unter Linden and Friedrichstrasse were especially profuse. All monuments commemorative of the Napoleonic war in the parks and public places, including the old cannon, were freshly decked with laurel wreaths. Among the especially magnificent decorations were those of the statue of Frederick William III. in front of the royal castle.

Chicago, March 10.—James Simpson, vice president of Marshall Field & Company, told the vice commission today that his company could raise the minimum wage of women to $2 a day without raising prices of goods to the consumer.

George Lytton, vice president of the "Hub," a next witness, said it was the practice of the "Hub" to give annual presents to its employees independent of the profits of the year. He asked to be excused from answering a question as to what per cent of the net profits of the firm the gifts formed.

The "Hub" employs 150 women, none of whom receive less than $6.50 per week. Mr. Lytton said he believed it was good policy to pay good wages. He said that his firm had been considering raising a minimum wage of $8. He pointed out as did Mr. Simpson at a previous session that an increase all along the line. Mr. Lytton said that the suggestion that employers should have a mass meeting to agree on a fair minimum wage was good.

Joseph Basse, representing Siegel, Cooper & Company, told that wages and immorality had no relation. "I believe that immorality is a state of mind," he said. "I believe our girls are moral, and few of them could be persuaded to take the 'easiest way.' They employ 1,250 girls half of whom earn $8 or less.

The explosion occurred at Noble's Explosives Works at Ardeer 20 miles from Glasgow. For a radius of several miles it had the force of a destructive earthquake.

The town of Irvine was shaken to its foundations. Many houses, churches, schools and public institutions were destroyed. Ceilings fell everywhere. Partitions collapsed and scarcely a window in the town was left intact.

People walking on the streets were thrown to the ground and many were seriously injured. All the inhabitants rushed from their houses in consternation. The waterfront and the harbor were masses of wreckage. There were three distinct explosions followed by an immense column of smoke two miles high.

Six bodies had been recovered up to a late hour this afternoon, while seven persons fatally hurt and a number of others less seriously injured had been taken to hospitals.

Prince, a negro, was serving a sentence for burglary in the state penitentiary here when, on February 11, 1912, he stabbed and killed Deputy Warden Davis during services in the prison chapel. The crime was the beginning of a series of tragedies at the penitentiary, in which four of officials and three convicts were killed. Prince was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang on August 30 last. The execution was stayed by an appeal to the supreme court, which tribunal later reaffirmed the sentence. Unless the board of pardons intercedes the negro will be executed on Friday of next week.

Assemblyman Rosa Plans to Do Away
With State Board of Agriculture.

Madison, Wis., March 10.—A state board of agriculture of three members proposed in the Rosa bill which comes up for hearing before the assembly committee on agriculture next week. Under his bill the present board is abolished after March 1, 1914. The members are to devote their entire time to the work.

The members of the board are to be appointed by the governor upon recommendation of a body composed of two delegates from the college of agriculture of the university, the state horticultural society, the state dairy association, the cheesemakers' association and a number of other similar organizations. These delegates are to be chosen annually and the bill provides that the first meeting of the board shall be on the second Wednesday of February next year. This organization shall nominate three members to the state board of agriculture, one member for one year, a second for two and the third for the third year term. The governor appoints the persons nominated.

It is made the duty of the board to cooperate with all of the various local organizations interested in agriculture. It shall also control the farmers' institutes of the state. To carry on the work Assemblyman Rosa asks for an annual appropriation of $75,000.

The board of three will also manage the state fair. The bill as applied to the management of the fair is much the same as the present law, except a few amendments in minor particulars. The board of agriculture is empowered to appoint a state livestock sanitary board of three members. The members selected are to hold office during the pleasure of the board.

The Rosa bill would increase the amount of state aid to the local fairs from fifty to eighty percent. He believes that the county fair associations should be encouraged as much as possible to put on exhibits and offer premiums for agricultural exhibits. As under the present law in order to receive this state aid each society is required to file a sworn statement with the secretary of state of the actual amount of cash premiums paid at the fair and a full statement of receipts and disbursements for the past year. Some of the county organizations endorse the Rosa bill and claim that the increased amount of state aid is needed to stimulate agricultural development.

Unusual Precautions Taken As Parliament Opens and King George Reads Address.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, March 10.—In connection with the opening of the new session of the British parliament by King George this afternoon elaborate precautions were taken to prevent any interference by militant suffragettes or their male supporters.

The time-honored ceremony known as "searching the vaults" beneath the house of commons and house of lords which has been carried out since the attempt by Guy Fawkes in 1605 to blow up the king and parliament, but which in later years has been performed in a most perfunctory manner, was again undertaken seriously this morning.

A party of women of the guard from the Tower of London, better known as the "beef eaters," went carefully through the building, accompanied by one of the chief officials of parliament and by the inspector of police and other high functionaries. All of these made a thorough search for any lurking suffragettes.

The greatest care was taken in issuing tickets for ladies for the actual ceremony of the opening. Threats had been made to create a scene when the king arrived to read his speech from the throne.

The lord great chamberlain, who issued the invitation, sent with it a letter stating that it was to be distinctly understood that the recipient of the ticket of admission accepted the fullest responsibility for the lady or gentleman presenting it and that the name must be written on it.

Along the line of parade down which King George and Queen Mary drove in a gilded state carriage drawn by the famous cream colored horses, strong forces of mounted and foot police and men in plain clothes were stationed to prevent the occurrence of any outrage.

St. Fire to Station.
Militant suffragettes today set fire to the Sauterlont station of the Great Western railway and burned it to the ground. Sauterlont is about thirty-one miles from London. Two placards were found in the vicinity on which were painted the words "Burning to get the vote," and "Votes for women."

King George today opened at the third session of the present parliament after a prorogation of only two days, the briefest recess on record. The king and queen took their places on the throne in the presence of a great gathering. The opening was preceded by the usual procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Hall. The center of the brilliant picture was the great gilded glass coach drawn by the famous Hanoverian cream colored horses.

Treats Balkan War.
A drizzling rain fell throughout the day, but this had no effect on the tens of thousands of sight-seers. The king's speech from the throne was chiefly devoted to the Balkan war, expressing the earnest desire of the European powers to hasten the conclusion of peace. His majesty opened with a reference to the jubilee of the marriage of his parents, King Edward the seventh and Queen Alexandra. He expressed gratitude for the affection shown by the nation to the widowed Queen Mother Alexandra. Referring to the Balkan war the king said:

"I am hopeful that the consultations between the powers will enable them not only to bring about a complete understanding among themselves, but to exercise a beneficial influence in hastening the conclusion of the war. His majesty referred to the action of the British dominions which have contributed war vessels to the British navy and also to the visits of Robert L. Borden, the Canadian premier. These things, he said, were calculated to promote the solidarity of the empire.

Suffragist Demonstration.
The discussions now proceeding in the Canadian parliament on matters of defense testify to the desire for the maintenance of the common safety.

The forecast of legislation to be introduced was restricted to narrow limits.

The first sign of suffrage activities during the royal procession was seen when two young women rushed upon St. James' park opposite Marlborough house while the royal coach was passing and vigorously waved papers. They were promptly surrounded by police and hustled from the spot.

Another party of five women who tried to present a petition to the king as he passed along Whitehall were arrested.

Considerable excitement ensued. The crowd was strongly hostile to the women and they had to be protected by the police against those who wanted to mete out immediate punishment. Each of the arrested women carried a petition setting forth the grievances of women.

"Fritz" Reibert scored both of Racine's goals and it was only because he hit them so fast that the opposing goal tender couldn't see it. The game was the fastest ever seen at the Racine rink.

Arrangements to have the crack Indiana team to play the Janesville Moose Roller polo team have not been materialized as yet and a game between these two teams would be a royal battle.

Wilson Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, March 10.—Nominations sent to the senate today by President Wilson included: First assistant postmaster general, Daniel C. Roper of South Carolina; third assistant postmaster general, Alexander Dockery, former assistant postmaster general, James I. Blakeslee of Pennsylvania; United States judge, district of Porto Rico, Peter J. Hamilton of Alabama; commissioner of labor statistics, Charles P. Neill of the District of Columbia.

Doesn't Bar Congressmen.
Wilson's rule about discussing patronage with his visitors does not apply to members of congress. It was pointed out at the White House today that the president intended his announcement that office-seekers should address themselves to heads of departments, should not be interpreted as including senators and representatives to whom the president hopes to be accessible at all times and on all subjects.

Mr. Wilson intends to consult with cabinet members about the recommendation of members of congress and vice versa. The whole purpose is to divert the stream of applicants and their friends from the White House to the government department so that the field of choice may be gradually reduced before he takes up the question of appointments. It was announced his nominations would go to the senate today.

Members of his cabinet persons for whom he sends will not be subject to the new rule, but all others will. On cabinet days the president will see his visitors before eleven o'clock, the hour of meeting. The president's last today was long enough to keep him busy.

Postmaster General Burleson reached the executive offices today, just a few minutes after President Wilson walked over from the White House. Several democratic national committeemen from the west had engagements today. Senator Stone, Speaker Clark and Representative Alexander of Missouri, who were next on the list, came to discuss Missouri's claims on several important positions.

Late today in the east room the men of the diplomatic corps were to be presented formally to the president and on Wednesday the diplomats and their wives will meet Mrs. Wilson. Tonight at nine o'clock the president will press a button at the White House which will open a stock breeders' convention at Fort Worth, Texas.

Re-arranges Schedule.
After four strenuous days, in which his conferences with democratic leaders were frequently interrupted by hand-shakers, President Wilson today decided that hereafter he will make appointments only after eleven o'clock in the morning or from the East room in the afternoon.

He planned to come to the executive office about 9:00 a. m., and first devote two full, uninterrupted hours to correspondence and other important matters.

Erya Holds Meeting.
Secretary Bryan, by appointment today, formally received most of the diplomatic corps in Washington. The secretary made a solicitous speech telling the corps in the name of President Wilson of the earnest desire of the administration to strengthen relations between the United States and other members of the great family of nations and spoke in an optimistic way of the possibility of accomplishing that result through the application of the principles of justice and equity in international dealings.

Ambassador Jusserand replied in a response strain and then personally presented the members of the diplomatic body to the new secretary of state. They were particularly impressed by Mr. Bryan's earnest appeal to them to call upon him personally and without restraint whenever they felt that the relations between their own government and the United States demanded speedy consideration and action.

After a brief executive session in which the nomination of John H. Moore to be a member of the interstate commerce commission was confirmed and the nominations made today by President Wilson, were referred to committees, the senate adjourned until Tuesday at 2:00 p. m.

Part of the Wisconsin Commission on the Perry Victory Centennial Plan for Celebration.

(By Joseph McC. Bell.)
As an educational feature, designed to enlist the widest popular interest in the centennial celebration of the Battle of Lake Erie which will be held in all the lake states during the summer of 1913, and to direct the attention of Wisconsin citizens to its historical significance, the Wisconsin Perry's Victory Centennial Commission, appointed under an act of the last legislature, has proposed and authorized two prize essay contests, which are proving of great interest, not only to students but to parents.

These competitions were promulgated in January of the present year and high school students who have entered are now at work upon their essays, orations or poems as the case may be. There is still another month in which to complete the manuscripts in the high school contest, an outline of the conditions for which is as follows:

Competition Conditions.
Competitions open to students in the public schools and private schools of equivalent rating.

Production not to exceed 2000 words in length, and to show internal evidence of independent effort; list of authorities to be appended.

Best production in each school to be selected under the direction of the principal and sent to the Commission by April first, the author to receive a bronze replica of the Congressional Perry medal struck in 1913.

A gold medal of special design to be presented in each Congressional District to the author of the best essay from a high school in that district, selection to be made by able and impartial judges; the school where he or she attends to receive a full sized facsimile of Perry's battle flag which is preserved at the U. S. Naval Academy.

The productions of the eleven gold medal winners to be embodied in the final report of the Commission to the Governor, and to become a part of the historical record of the state; also cash prizes of fifty, thirty and twenty dollars to be given to the three best among the gold medal winners.

The subjects of essays to be chosen from the following:

1. The Navy and its Heroes in the War of 1812.
2. The Army and its Heroes in the War of 1812.
3. Causes of the War of 1812.
4. Results of the War of 1812.
5. The Old Northwest in the War of 1812.
6. The Life of Commodore Perry.
7. A Century of Peace.

Full Text of Conditions Published.
The full text of these conditions were printed by the Department of Public Instruction and issued as a leaflet to the principals of high schools throughout the state and to such private schools of equivalent rating as were on the accredited list of the Department.

School Exercises.
There was also published, on the reverse side of this leaflet, the request of the Commission that every rural, state graded and private school of equivalent rank, should present a public program of exercises appropriate to the centennial, material for which is published in the Wisconsin Memorial Day Annual for 1913 pp. 21-45; where also the full text of the high school competition conditions may be found.

There are many books of history, fiction and poetry dealing with this interesting period from which material for programs may be selected. A bibliography is published in the Annual.

Don't Give Up the Ship.
Facsimiles of Commodore Perry's battle flag, 10 feet long by 8 1/2 feet hoist, of standard Navy bunting and bearing in white letters upon this blue field the famous words of Capt. James Lawrence, "Don't Give up the Ship," are offered by the Commission to every school superintendent in the state, over one hundred in number, in which at least half of the schools should present such a public program before May 15, 1913—these flags to be held by the superintendent as a trophy for award in interschool contests of any kind.

Poem.
The Commission has also made a separate but unspecific offer in respect to the production of a poem based upon Perry's Victory. It will suitably reward (independent of the essay competition) such an effort on the part of any student eligible to the essay contest, whose production may be considered of sufficient merit.

Normal School and College Competition.
The second competition authorized by the Commission is open to undergraduate students of Wisconsin normal schools and all colleges empowered to grant degrees.

The length of the manuscript required is extended to a maximum of 10,000 words with a choice of six subjects as follows:

1. Settlements and forts along the Great Lakes, at the opening of the War of 1812.
2. Naval Career of Commodore Perry.
3. Joint military and naval operations about Lake Erie in 1813.
4. Wisconsin in the War of 1812.
5. Results of the Battle of Lake Erie.
6. The convention of 1818, as affecting our relations with Canada.

The printed conditions of accuracy and insight, and originality of thought will be the basis of selection in the final comparison which will be made by prominent educators not residents of Wisconsin to be named by the Commission. The school contests will be decided under the direction of the several presidents, through local committees of award, and the winning essay from each must be in the hands of the Commission before May first.

A bronze medal and $25.00 in cash will be presented to the winner in each school, and to the three best in the competition among these, three additional cash prizes of two hundred, one hundred and of fifty dollars respectively, will be given.

The printed conditions of the normal school and college competition will be mailed upon application to the Commission at 567 Federal Building, Milwaukee. Each school and college was however supplied in January.

Character of the Centennial Movement.

These competitions are available to some 40,000 high school students between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years, and to five thousand of more normal school and college students, without the university, ranging in age from sixteen to twenty-three years. Of course a proportionately small number of these will enter, otherwise the task and expense of handling the competitions would be enormous; but the attention of all will be called to the historical significance of the Centennial and a larger number will take part in the revival of general interest, than will actually enter the competitions. The Commission has however received satisfactory assurances that the number of actual competitors will be large.

The Centennial Movement is entirely educational and patriotic in character, and its promoters in the ten states participating must rely, for the success of the celebration, upon the patriotic sentiment of the people and their desire to educate the youth of the country in its history.

It has been found that our foreign-born population, from all parts of Europe, respond freely to suggestions of this kind, inaugurated by native leaders in their adopted country—that in fact they are eager to learn its history and its laws; and there is probably no better way to help assimilate these citizens, than by teaching them the story of American independence, and by giving them the opportunity to join with their neighbors of longer American lineage, in patriotic historical ceremonies.

Value of the Opportunity.
The opportunity presented in the "Perry's Victory Centennial" to celebrate the events and the significance of our second war for independence, and of the hundred years of peace with Great Britain which has ensued, is one in which parents and teachers should join with eagerness and enthusiasm; and the school programs should be enlarged and dignified by the participation of men and women capable of making the strongest appeal to the understanding and patriotism of the young.

Centennials of such educational importance and interest as the one now present consideration, will never be passed unnoticed by an intellectual and patriotic people.

The Wisconsin Commission believes that the schools are the proper and natural medium through which to invite public attention to the real meaning of the Centennial. In offering to Wisconsin students the opportunity to engage in a competition of unusual historical interest, for valuable inducements offered in addition to the educational incentive, the Commission is convinced that it has selected a celebration feature in especial accord with the intent of the legislative act creating the Commission; and that in no more certain or comprehensive way could the educational value of the historical revival, indicated in the movement, be brought home to the people of the entire state.

ENGINEERS OVER FIFTY TO HAVE THEIR EYES TESTED

Orders were received from the superintendent of the Northwestern road to the effect that all engineers over fifty years of age are compelled to have their eyes tested. This is a new ruling on this road and will go in effect after the twentieth of this month.

WISCONSIN DIVISION MAKES FINE RECORD IN SAFETY WORK

From the complete list of the number of items that the division safety committees have sent in to the general safety committee for adoption has been filed on the bulletin board at the roundhouse. The Wisconsin division leads the list by a large plurality, having sent in 414 items for consideration out of which 7 were rejected. The Madison division sent in 180 and had 5 rejected, while the Northern Wisconsin sent in 257 and all of them were acted upon. The Minnesota division ranks second on the list having a record of sending 277 rules and regulations and only two of them being thrown out by the members of the general safety committee. The total number of items that the head committee received from the division committees numbered 4,328 and out of this number 163 were not acted upon. This speaks well of the Wisconsin division, showing that the members have been earnest in their work, and from the small number of items that they petitioned for corrections show that their reports were well studied out.

Probably the first "bo" of the season was seen on the head end of one of the early morning passenger trains to Chicago this morning. He was riding the first blind and looked cold and dismal. All the railroad men agreed that this was a hard sign of spring but riding the blind in this weather is no pleasant job for it is bad for the fingers and nose.

Engineer Tallmadge is laying off, Engineer Coen replacing him on the five-thirty switch engine.

Another new engine went up to Fond du Lac on freight 319 to be put in service in the northern part of the state.

Was Not a Cat.

An incident happened at the Northwestern roundhouse yesterday that afforded much amusement to the employees. Two workmen, whose names are withheld, were sent to inspect some gravel. While busily engaged in their labor they discovered a small kitten which they began fondling. This innocent little kitten turned out to be a member of a healthy skunk family and the two individuals, having been hating themselves and company ever since. The little "kitten" went down into the family residence, and the two young men vowed for revenge. Forgetting their work in their excitement and becoming completely engrossed in miniature war against skunks in general, armed with a pick and a shovel they proceeded to vanquish the enemy. After an hour's diligent work of digging, skunk number one made his appearance at the mouth of the den. Before he could set his battery into action he was dispatched with a blow from the shovel. The enemy were slow in making their appearance but good generalship on the part of the two gravel inspectors prevented any retreat. After a couple of hours sieging the entire company of skunks, whose number was five, was killed and the victorious men had met the enemy and they were theirs. Leaving the field of the struggle with the bodies of the skunks they wanted to tell their fellow employees of their battle but only those who had had fever and couldn't smell would listen to them. "Busy" and "Snowball," the victorious generals, were last seen investing in some perfume to take away the marks or rather the smell of the struggle.

There is no marked disturbance on the weather map today. The barometer is slightly above normal over New England, and in the Rocky Mountain region, and slightly below in the Central and Southern states, and in the Canadian northwest. There have been heavy rains in the

TO DEFEND TITLE IN BOUT WITH DUNDEE

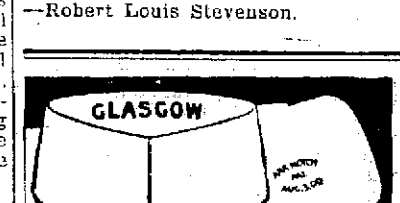

Johnny Kilbane.

The featherweight title championship of the country will be at stake when Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Dundee meet in a scheduled twenty-round bout in Tom McCarey's arena at Vernon, Cal., April 15.

Many friends of Dundee are decidedly strong in their belief that Dundee will push the fighting and later Kilbane to a speedy finish. Others, and they are in the majority, for many of Dundee's former supporters have been converted to Kilbane, are of the opinion that Kilbane, while admittedly a clever defensive player, also is a bear in offensive fighting when in the mood, and neither Dundee nor any other featherweight new in existence can successfully cope with him.

TO TRY AGAIN.

It is a decade ago since Sir "Tummy" Lipton sought to lift the American's cup and carry it back to England and once more he would make the attempt with Shamrock IV. That silver tankard won by the little keel schooner America off Cowes in 1851 has long been coveted by the English yachtsmen as rightfully belonging to their trophy rooms, but some way or other the "Yankee" boat builders have always succeeded in constructing a vessel just a bit too fast for the English and they have gone home defeated. It was in 1899 that Sir Thomas first sought the honor of carrying the cup back across the Atlantic with his Shamrock I. The Columbia was the able defender of the New York Yacht club and won the races handsly. Two years later Sir Thomas crossed the "puddle" again with the Shamrock II, and the Columbia again showed a clean pair of heels to the Englishman. Another two years passed and Sir Thomas' eyes were still turned towards that "hundred guineas worth of tankard" to sip his tea in, and with the Shamrock III he made bold to challenge a third time for the only, only to meet defeat, the ROLLANCE winning for America. At that time the English sailors said it was impossible to compete successfully in American waters under American rules and the New York Yacht club was asked in vain to modify the requirements. This they refused to do and now, after waiting ten years, Sir Thomas again sends in his modest challenge. An exchange, in commenting on the proposed race, has the following to say relative to its effect upon American ship-building.

"A phase of the promised contest in which all classes of people must be interested is one that has appealed to Americans in general in connection with previous affairs of this kind. It was observable for the first time after the race at Cowes. 'The victory for the America,' says history, 'gave a new impetus to yacht building and racing, and the defeat of their crack yachts set the British yachtsmen to work to imitate her own prominent features—the hollow bow and flat sails. Old yachts were altered and new ones built on both sides of the Atlantic to conform to the new theories.' It has been remarked since then, that at every revival of yachting marine construction has increased. As there never was a time when marine construction in the United States stood more plainly in need of encouragement, than it does now, the Lipton challenge will be welcomed for more serious reasons than those usually attaching themselves to such events."

PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS.

As the spring season approaches the question of public grounds for the children should again be most seriously considered. It is not only a question of public health, but of morals as well, and Janesville can well afford time to stop and thoroughly discuss the question before throwing it aside. Madison, has converted its school grounds into playgrounds for the students. High swings, teeters, swinging rings and other out-door apparatus is to be found on every bit of school property in the Capital city. The children are taught how to play during their recreation periods and how to enjoy themselves. Not only have the school grounds been transformed into playgrounds, but also they have public parks where are found baseball, basketball, handball, tennis courts and a football field, with swings and other apparatus for general exercise with capable instructors there to teach their use and watch over the children playing. Last year the boys and girls of the Third ward held a carnival with a view of raising money for a nucleus for a playground fund. A similar enterprise was also held in the First ward and a small amount of money raised. In Madison individual citizens have given parcels of land and equipped them for playgrounds and presented them to the city. While this might not be possible here there are certainly enough vacant lots in various portions of the city, so that each ward could have a public playground properly equipped that would work wonders on the moral and physical conditions of the future citizens of the community. The matter ought to be taken up seriously and earnestly supported by those who are interested in the welfare and best interests of the city.

This nice thawing weather must have relieved the city street department of lots of worry over the condition of the sidewalks. It is much easier to let nature do the work that protect citizens from wet feet during thaws and bad falls when the walks are icy and pedestrians must travel in the roads.

Won't those iconoclasts ever get through tearing to pieces the most sacred characters in American history? A while ago it was declared that Washington sometimes swore. Now it is claimed that he wrote poetry.

Next, somebody will be wanting to know why a penalty for violation was not included in the new federal law prohibiting the invasion of dry states by liquor in "original packages."

It looks as though Washington was going to witness a revision of its police force as well as a revision of the tariff. Those suffragettes mean business when they once get started.

Somebody must have taken down the "lese majeste" sign in Germany. A decision has just been rendered against Emperor William in a lawsuit.

There is a bare possibility that February and March got switched in the cradle and old Mother Nature did not know the difference between them.

Even if Vice President Marshall can't be in the spotlight in Washington he will be in the sunlight. He is a baseball fan and likes the bleachers.

Congress at the last minute, restored the free seed item to the appropriation bill. Well, the seeds make good chicken feed, anyway.

It will not be long before the local baseball fans will have a severe touch of the bascaball fever and then watch the results.

Now that Mr. Edison's cigar box storage battery is in commission we may yet live to see his poured concrete house.

The District of Columbia is to have a utilities commission. It would also help some to give it a police force.

The Easter designs of the milliners refer, of course, to the styles and not to dad's pocketbook.

At least it isn't J. Pierpont Morgan's financial condition that is causing all the worry.

Hank Tumms had a photograph of his bank roll taken the other day. He was one great mystery about a railroad sandwich is how they photograph the ham on so lifelike.

There are so many ways of getting to heaven nowadays that there is sure going to be an awful collision if they all try to run into the terminal station at the same time.

Anson Frisby, our banker, says he is thinkin' of havin' a steam heatin' plant put in his house. Jed Higgins, who runs our green house and is quite a florist, says there ain't no such plant as that so far as he knows, and that Anse must be nature fakin' again.

The best thing about advice is that it don't cost nothing which by the way, is about all that most of it is worth.

Grandpa Bibbins says the trouble with pie is that most of it is cut just a little too wide for his mouth.

Doc Purdy, the painless dentist in our village, has been pinched for going around and scraping off the gold just signs to fill teeth with. He used all the signs off the hutel on Amos Butts, our lively man, and the signs off Miss Pringle's millinery emporium.

Retrospection. If I had my life to live over again I could know all the things I know now.

I'd follow me with the proudest of my fellow men.

And I'd make folks take notice, I'd say, you.

I'd start making money when seven years old.

I would pinch, I would scrape, I would save.

I'd scheme and I'd plan for a fortune untold.

I would work, I would toil, I would slave.

By wickery dark, by deceit and by stealth.

I would pile up the gold my life through.

I would sadden the world by the power of my wealth—

And then maybe I wouldn't. Would you?

Perhaps I would never take time to enjoy

The enchantments of nature and life.

But would use every moment that I could employ

In the whirl of the money mad strife.

I probably never would have time to feel

A small bit of compassion for those I relentlessly crushed 'neath my grim iron heel,

Or to lessen their torture and woes. It may be I never would find time

Up to heaven's superb vault of blue Or to hear the birds warble their glorious lays.

But I guess that I would, wouldn't you?

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

OUR DEBT TO HUMANITY.

How much we owe mankind!

Every hero that died for liberty died for you and me.

Every martyr who gave his life to keep the faith was a sacrifice for us.

Every scientist who devoted his years to patient investigation added to our light.

Every soldier who fought for righteousness helped to carve out the civilization we enjoy.

We are the heirs of all these men. They tolled for us, planned for us, agonized for us.

When we think of the infinite pains by which our institutions were built up, that human blood was used for the mortar between all the stones in the temple of our civilization, that the heights on which we dwell were erected out of the bodies of men, as the coral isle is made up of the actualcula of the sea, we are staggered by the obligation placed upon us. How can we ever tell our gratitude to those who thus gave their all for our happiness?

The thought implants in us a reverence for our institutions and a desire to be very loyal to society.

Its rules were made for our benefit. Even though sometimes defective, as human institutions are apt to be, they are necessary until something better can be put in their stead.

Our peace, prosperity, liberty, enlightenment, security, our inventions, scientific knowledge, philosophy, religion, art, literature, our schools, clubs, churches, great cities, beautiful villages, railroads, steamships, ocean cables, wireless, aeroplanes, comforts, conveniences—all these and other blessings are free gifts to us. They have been patiently wrought for us through the long ages of the past.

All that is asked of us in return is that we use them to the best advantage; that we do not abuse or ruthlessly destroy these precious inheritances.

If we were keenly sensitive of all that has been done in our behalf we would never rest easy one moment unless we were doing for others.

Humanity has placed on us a debt of sacred honor.

This debt we must repay to humanity.

BUSY MONEY'S SERVICE

It Circulates as Blood Circulates Through the Arteries and Veins of the Body, the Bank Being the Commercial Heart.

(Copyrighted 1913, by Publishers' Service Bureau.)

The old, time-worn metaphor, "Money is the life-blood of trade," may have a strong chestnutty flavor, but it is a truth that only appears to have lost its vital force because it has been so often repeated. It is true now, as it always has been, because it states a fact.

Legislatures may amend and courts may interpret a law, but no power on earth can repeal a fact.

Here is a tale that illustrates how money does its work:

When Gold Flowed Freely.

During the prosperous years preceding the panic of '93 the manufacturers doing business in a certain Wisconsin town adopted the practice of paying off their employees in specie, and to meet their pay-rolls they drew from the banks approximately $15,000 in gold monthly.

Every month, within a day or two after the gold was paid out, it began to come back to the banks, and it was invariably the case that it would all be in the bank vaults once more before the end of the month ready to do its work over again. It had passed from the hands of the employer to the workmen, thence to the tradesmen, and then back to the bank, cancelling obligations at each transfer. As a matter of fact, before returning to the banks a considerable portion of this gold passed through several hands, and every time it changed hands it paid a debt, or, which is the same thing, paid for something purchased.

Then Gold Went into Hiding.

Then the panic came. The manufacturers continued the practice of meeting their pay-rolls in specie for a time, but there was an immediate shrinkage in the amount of that kind of money in circulation. In three months none of the gold paid out for wages came back to the banks.

The explanation is simple. The gold was hoarded—taken out of the channels of trade—and trade languished as a natural consequence. The gold, and large amounts of silver and currency, sneaked into the old stockings, cracked tea pots, and other "safe" hiding places.

Men who were in business during those panic years have a vivid picture in their memories of the conditions under which they then struggled. They know that whatever the economists and politicians may say about the cause or causes of that panic, the lack of money to meet the demands of business, caused by loss of confidence and collapsed credits, was the problem that every business man was forced to face.

Money had disappeared; it was not in circulation; trade languished; prices of commodities and the value of property dwindled; loans could not be negotiated on gilt-edged securities. This always occurs when money goes into hiding. It also occurs in some degree when money is withdrawn from the channels of trade for any cause, even when it is merely sent away to another place to do its work, and the effect is in due proportion to the cause—the amount of money withdrawn.

Sending Away as Bad as Hiding.

The term, "sent away," is used advisedly and for the purpose of pointing a moral. When money is sent out of town to buy goods that can be purchased at home it is as effectually removed from circulation in that town as it would be were it buried.

Catalogue and mail order house buyers may not realize that they are pursuing a course that is precisely in line with the policy adopted by the man who hides his money and multiplies the evils of panic times, but such is the fact. Their act is as illogical and wrong, even if it is not so consciously and immediately harmful, as that of the panic-maker.

Furthermore, they can not match the excuse of the panic time money hoarder. They are not taking precautions against the day when they will not be able to get more money. They are calmly and in cold blood doing their best to ruin the business of their community and contributing to the prosperity of some other community in which they have no property interest.

These facts are worthy of careful consideration.

PASTOR PREVENTS PANIC WHEN CHURCH TAKES FIRE

[RE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, March 10.—The coolness of the pastor Rev. O. E. Cuhlman, prevented a fire panic at the First English Lutheran church on the south side yesterday morning. The pastor quietly announced that he could smell smoke and asked the congregation to leave in order while the organist, Miss Lydia Steinke kept on playing the pipe organ until everyone was out of the building. In the meantime the structure was filling up with smoke. The church was considerably damaged and the pipe organ ruined by water.

CLOAK AND SHIRT MAKERS AGREE TO TERMS PROPOSED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Boston, Mass., March 10.—The difference between the cloak and skirt manufacturers and their striking employees were adjusted today. Thomas Jefferson's Inventions.
Thomas Jefferson invented the folding campstool, the revolving office chair, the two-wheeled sulky, the copying press, the pedometer, a lamp and a very convenient improvement on the plows used in his day. Of all these ingenious contrivances the plow received the greatest notice, a gold medal having been awarded it in Paris in 1790. Eighteen years later the Royal Agricultural Society of the Seine, to which he had presented the original plow, sent him a superb, up-to-date plow containing his improvement.

HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR HOTEL MAY BE BUILT IN CITY

JANESVILLE BUSINESS MEN CONSIDER PLANS TO CONSTRUCT MODERN UP-TO-DATE HOTEL ON MAIN STREET.

TENTATIVE PLAN MADE

Men Behind Project Estimate It Will Cost Hundred Thousand Dollars—Lessee For Property Already Secured.

"If plans formed by prominent business men of the city are carried to completion, the city is to have a new hundred thousand dollar hotel on a site which is located on South Main street, adjacent to the business section of the city. Not only that but the proposed hotel will have a hundred rooms, modern equipment throughout, and will be conducted by one of the best known hotel proprietors in Southern Wisconsin." This was the statement made this morning by a prominent businessman who is on the inside of the present deal.

"While all details have not been settled, tentative plans have been considered, options on two pieces of property secured, and approximate cost of construction and furnishing for the proposed structure as well as a lessee for ten years secured. It will be a modern up-to-date, first-class building and I can add, managed by one of the best known hotel proprietors in southern Wisconsin.

"At present I do not care to say who is behind the proposition but if present plans are carried out it will be one of the biggest additions to Janesville in many years. There is sufficient capital interest to assure the success of the project. Definite plans will be made public within the next two weeks within the name of the lessee, who is a public as well as all details of the business.

The coterie of gentlemen behind the new hotel deal are well equipped to carry the proposition through and consider it would be good investment. They have an excellent lessee in view, who agrees to take the hotel over as soon as completed and while some sixty-five thousand dollars would be expended in construction of the building, the remainder thirty-five thousand in furnishings, it would be a paying venture. Janesville could support another first class hotel and the proposed building is one of the most modern and up-to-date in the state.

The office, dining room, cafe and bar rooms will be located on the ground floor, according to the plans suggested, with excellent elevator service, a rear door for freight and baggage, wide halls, sanitary plumbing and almost every room in the house with bath room connections and outside light. It is to be heated throughout with the most approved steam heat and lighted by electric light and gas.

DEPARTMENT AWAITS ARRIVAL OF A FIRE

Burning Freight Car Yards Sunday Town From New Rushes Sunday Afternoon.

Janesville's fire department formed a new method of fire fighting yesterday afternoon when, instead of rushing to the fire with all possible speed the fire was brought to them. One of the merchandise cars of the Northwestern road on a siding at South Janesville caught fire caused by the tipping over of the small heater which was supplied to keep perishable goods from freezing. When it was discovered the wheels of the car were on fire a switch engine was hastily coupled to the burning car and the race to the town yards began. The fire department was warned of the predicament and was waiting at the five mile car after a record run.

The fire extinguishers had little trouble in extinguishing the blaze with chemicals and very little damage was done. None of the merchandise was damaged but the interior of the car will have to be rebuilt. This unique method of fire fighting is the first on record in Janesville and the sensation of having to wait for the fire was an odd one.

A MERRY WAR ON FOR SECURING CONTRACTS

Representatives of the United States Sugar Company and Rock County Sugar Company Seeking Growers' Signatures.

There promises to be a merry war for sugar beet contracts throughout Rock county the coming next few weeks. Mr. Rowell and William H. Heidemann, representing the United States Sugar company, are already in the field looking for contracts for the factory of their company at Madison, and W. W. Woolf of the Rock County Sugar company and force of field men will start out at once seeking contracts for the local factory. The farmers appear to be equally divided on the question although the two contracts are almost identical, with the odds in favor of the Rock County Sugar company when it comes to factory delivery.

Mr. Rowell and Mr. Heidemann met some of the members of the Rock County Beet Growers' association informally on Saturday and it is understood that a regular meeting of the association will be held on Thursday of the present week, at which time action will be taken officially on the contract now offered by the local factory. Meanwhile agents for both companies are busy and scouring the country for signers. The Racine and Kenosha Beet Growers' association have endorsed both contracts and the local association will doubtless do likewise.

TRY ASSAULT CASE IN CIRCUIT COURT

Neighborhood Quarrel Given Airing in Action Now on Trial—Three More Cases on Calendar.

A dozen or more of witnesses on both sides were ready for the suit of Charles Boehm against William Robinson, the trial of which was begun in the circuit court this afternoon. Neighborhood troubles will doubtless be given an airing in this suit judging from the statements of counsel to the jury. J. J. Cunningham for the plaintiff stated that his client was maliciously attacked by the defendant who threw large stones at him, Boehm, who took charge of Robinson's horses found in his cornfield. Robinson, stated that the defendant, Robinson, stated that he would show that his client acted at all times in self defense and that he had been attacked three times by the plaintiff with a five-tined pitch fork. Robinson was the first witness called, being examined adversely by the plaintiff's attorney.

A jury was drawn in a case involving the condemning of land in the city of Evansville for street purposes, and the jury will go to Evansville tomorrow noon to view the premises reporting tomorrow afternoon when they will return a verdict. R. M. Richmond represented the city of Evansville in the case.

But three more cases remain for trial on the jury calendar: Emil C. Schmidt vs. Chas. Quaman et al.; A. C. James et al. vs. Elsie Winkey Schmidt et al.; and Richard Finley vs. C. M. & St. P. railroad company.

TAX COMMISSIONER MADE A STATEMENT ON REASSESSMENT

Nils P. Haugen Says City Must Pay For Cost of Re-assessment as Fixed by Commission.

Another chapter in the ill-timed re-assessment of the city of Janesville was enacted today when Nils P. Haugen, one of the state tax commission made the statement that Janesville must pay for the cost of re-assessment despite the fact that the city council have refused to do so and the county treasurer received a check from the state treasurer covering the amount. The Madison dispatch is as follows and it followed out will mean a law suit in which the city will be the defendant and settle a most interesting legal question:

The Dispatch.
Madison, March 10.—That the city of Janesville will have to pay the item of $2,850 the cost of re-assessment of the city by the state tax commission. The duty of making the collection he aid evolved upon the state treasurer and by such claims is taken into the county when settlements are made between the state and county.

PROGRESS WITH FINISHING OF NEW HOSPITAL BUILDING

Plastering on Third Floor Completed—Lower Coat Applied to Walls of Rough Floor Rooms.

Steady progress is being made in the interior finishing of the new Mercy hospital building. The rough coat of plaster has been applied to the rooms on all three floors. The hard finish coat has been applied to the rooms on the third floor and is now being put on the walls of the second. Fires have been maintained in stoves while the plastering is in progress to prevent freezing and hasten the drying. Most of the doors to the third floor have been hung and are being given the first coat of paint. The elevator shaft in the new hospital is of the closed type. It is entirely fire proof, being enclosed by asbestos composition blocks, set between reinforced concrete columns.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

HEALTH A REQUISITE FOR MARRIAGE.

THE OTHER day I received a wedding invitation which made me feel very sad.

Why did I experience such an inappropriate feeling? Because I don't think those two young people ought to be married—at least not at present.

No, it isn't because he hasn't a good position and sufficient capital with which to start a home. I believe they are fairly well fixed financially. The capital these two young people lack is not financial at all; it's physical. They are both of them very nearly bankrupts in nervous energy and vitality.

And I think they run a far greater risk than if they should marry without a penny.

They say that love is likely to fly out of the window when the grey wolf of poverty comes in at the door. I think he is even more likely to go hurtling away when the gloomy wrath called nerves begins to haunt the house.

It is really surprising how little most people have to start about health as a requisite for a happy marriage.

We talk about congeniality and similarity of tastes, we advise this and that temperament to mate with this and that disposition, but how seldom we recognize the fact that health has a great deal to do with happiness in this, as in every other relation of life.

Nay more than in any other, since marriage is the closest relation and hence the one in which friction is most likely to develop and most painful when it does develop.

Now health and love together make the most perfect oil for preventing friction. But if either of these two ingredients is lacking, the oil is not perfect and the machinery is likely to get out of order.

Look back over your married life, reader friends, and see if most of your quarrels and misunderstandings and grievances have not come to you at times when you were at a low ebb of vitality. After you had had a few good nights' sleep and strength and joy had come back to you, didn't the big troubles of yesterday look very small?

Just as in the concave and convex mirrors at the amusement park we see our reflected persons become abnormally large or dwindle into nothingness, so our annoyances look when viewed in the magnifying mirror of ill health or the reducing mirror of good health and vitality.

If we want our children to make happy marriages, we cannot do better than to urge them to lay up health and vitality against their mating time, even more carefully than they store up money and linen and lingerie and household possessions.

For they have more chance of being happily married without the latter than without the former.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

MAKE a rule and pray God to help you to keep it, never if possible to lie down at night without being able to say: "I have made one human being at least a little wiser, a little happier or a little better this day." You will find it easier than you think and pleasanter.

—Charles Kingsley.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

A very attractive way of serving Hamburg steak and one which is very unusual, is as follows: Make a mound of the seasoned meat, place it in a well greased baking pan and cover it with larded strips of salt pork, using care to have the strips carefully cut and nicely arranged, then bake, and when ready to serve, remove carefully to a hot platter; garnish with parsley and serve with mushroom sauce, if it is desired especially nice.

Chop Suey.—This dish, if prepared at home, can be enjoyed without any qualms of imagination. Mince the cooked meat of one cooked chicken, two pounds of veal, a fourth of a pound of veal tongue; mix and season well. Boil two cups of rice until tender, drain and mix with the meat. Chop a can of mushrooms, one sweet pepper, two cloves of garlic and a pinch of powdered cloves. Put all into a granite kettle and pour over a quart of rich chicken and veal stock. Set to simmer two hours.

Sour Cream Pie.—Take a cup each of sour cream, sugar and raisins; add a beaten egg, a tablespoon of vinegar, half a teaspoon of salt, the same of cinnamon, a fourth of a teaspoon of cloves and a little grated nutmeg. This is a fine pie. Bake with two crusts.

Spanish Salad.—Cut into dice three slices of stale bread, add an equal quantity of cold cooked potatoes, three tomatoes and one onion chopped fine. Rub the salad bowl with the cut side of a clove of garlic, put in the salad, pour over plenty of French dressing, using a tablespoonful of vinegar to three of olive oil, salt and cayenne and a teaspoonful of catsup and powdered sugar.

A Side Issue of Suffrage

DO you ever pause to think that through the ages men have done most of the marching?

To be sure, marching has been looked upon as hard work; and as entirely too great a physical tax upon woman—frail and delicate woman, who will stay up all night with a sick baby, and, the next day, do a big washing, and cook three meals, and dress the children, and get them off to school, and throw in a little mending and preserving just by way of extras.

But she has been considered too delicate to march. So man has done the marching, and has come home with sore feet and an aching back, and said how tired he was.

But there is another side to marching he didn't speak about, and now that women have taken to marching in the cause of suffrage, they are discovering it.

There's something exhilarating, inspiring, in stepping along shoulder to shoulder, with a great host, with flags flying, bands playing, and the sidewalk cheering. You forget your feet and your back. You know only the joy of working for a cause, of feeling yourself of value in the world, of realizing that when you join with others, you can accomplish something.

And it is this side issue of suffrage, (this sense of the value of working with others, that will be of inestimable benefit to the average woman.

For woman, for ages, has worked alone. She has worked alone in her home. She has been alone on the farm, alone on the great prairies, alone, even in her city home. She has not had the sense of fellowship which every man has had, and which adds so much to every phase of living.

But the suffrage parade in which she rubs shoulders with hundreds of other women, in which she marches with thousands for a common cause, is waking her, not only to the joy of comradeship, but to the value of combining. She begins to realize the power that is hers when she is joined with others, all thinking alike and bending their efforts in the same direction and though for the moment this direction is suffrage, she begins to see that suffrage is not, and need not be, the end. And this vision of the future and this "feel" of her power, brings a great sense of joy.

Suffrage, as it grows, will no doubt produce many valuable side issues. But this is one of the first, and in its results, one of the most important.

Barbara Boyd.

Cooking by Electricity.

In attending the Woman's Industrial Exhibition in New York this week, I wondered if there was really anything in this world that was not for woman, or that she did not have something to do with the making or disposition of in the home. We surely have passed the age when women's hands lie idly in their laps, for the rugs we saw woven, dresses and bonnets made, marmalades, jams and jellies, candies, work by children and cooking, all showed evidence of doing.

A model municipal terminal market designed by a woman helps solve the economic wastes in transportation and distribution of foods.

The sanitary arrangement of homes and the artistic decoration of the rooms seemed to represent elimination, rather than putting many so-called decorative things into it. A few good articles of furniture one or two vases, well arranged, color effect quiet, but effective, all these must have an artistic influence on many people who paid their respects to these carefully designed and furnished homes.

The "Kitchen de Luxe" was a kitchen and dining room together, which seemed quite the proper thing, as this method of cooking is so clean and the arrangement of the kitchen so orderly and attractive there seemed no necessity for separating these two rooms which are so closely linked together. As I have cooked entirely for years, and a year by electricity, I was naturally interested in what they were cooking at this exhibition. Electrical cooking is not guess cooking, and until it is made possible for all housekeepers to have it for cooking and baking, we cannot exactly know the necessary heat units to use, as we have no way of determining them. When the price of electricity is within reach of all housekeepers then accuracy and exact science will have come in cooking and until then it cannot be. It is lecturing for years to thousands of women, good cooks and otherwise, on this side of the ocean or the other side, the question always is "How hot should we have the oven?" "What is a moderately hot oven?" and "I can make a cake but I do not know just the temperature of the oven," is what I hear at every lecture. The baking is the big problem. The necessary heat units in relation to the food cooked or baked is the difficult thing for any one. I must confess that since I have been able to cook by electricity with accuracy, I find it much harder work and with less certainty when cooking by other fuel. But the time is rapidly approaching when it is going to be within reach of all. A fireless electric stove saves electricity, and in cooking for a family of two or four persons, by using good sense, which means looking after the current, I can keep the price as reasonable and at some times less than artificial gas. Every woman can do it if she tries. I have even saved much current in the regular electric range by turning off the current and letting the baking finish on the retained heat. Of course that requires thinking, but that is what we were given brains for.

If we are not quite ready yet for the range we may perhaps have an electric toaster, which is most practical, an electric chafing dish in which many good things may be made and easily watched at the table while cooking. Then if a hot plate is added to this a whole meal supper or breakfast, is easily prepared. I had electric buttons fastened underneath my dining room table at my right hand so I could turn the current on or off as desired. Below I will give some of the dishes I saw prepared at "the kitchen de Luxe" and the cost of current, and these may be prepared on the chafing dish or stove.

Lamb Chops With Vegetables. Material—Lean lamb chops, 1-2 inches thick, three; very small onions, three; medium sized potatoes, three; large mushrooms, six; green peas, one cupful; tomatoes, one cupful; soup stock, one cupful; butter, one teaspoonful; salt and pepper.

Directions—Use only blazer part of the chafing dish. Turn current on to full heat and when the blazer is very hot put in the butter. When the butter begins to brown, put the chops in and brown nicely on both sides, then add soup stock and tomatoes. Let boil for five minutes and then add the remaining vegetables and seasoning. Now put the cover on and turn on to low heat and let simmer until the vegetables are done, which will require fifteen or twenty minutes. Serve hot. Cost of current, two and one-half cents for preparing this dish.

Crullers. Material—Sugar, 1 cupful; milk, one cupful; pastry flour, four cupfuls; baking powder, three teaspoonfuls; salt, one-half teaspoonful; butter, one tablespoonful; eggs, three; nutmeg.

Directions—Sift flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg together. Cream the butter, add sugar and eggs well beaten with the milk. Stir this into the flour. When well mixed this should be a stiff dough. Roll out on a well floured board and cut with a doughnut cutter. Use electric frying kettle, having it half full of fat. Turn on the current to full heat and when very hot drop in the crullers. When they are light brown on both sides take them out, lay on white blotting paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar. The fat should be hot enough so that when the crullers are dropped in they come at once to the top, but are not brown. (I sampled these crullers.) Cost six cents for preparing the above amount of crullers.

Finnan Haddie. Material—Milk, one cupful; flour, one tablespoonful; butter, one tablespoonful; lemon juice, one teaspoonful; small finnan haddie, paprika.

Directions—Put the finnan into the blazer of the chafing dish or on the electric stove and cover with cold water. Turn the current on and allow it to come to a boil. Turn the current low for about ten minutes and cook. Remove from the fire and take out the bones and skin. Make the sauce with flour, butter and milk and add the fish and allow this to simmer for a few minutes. When ready to serve add the lemon juice and a little paprika. Cost of current, two cents for preparing dish.

The dishes, with care, may be prepared over any fire but with electricity the heat is continuous, steady and always the same.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

To Peel Vegetables. I have noticed, from time to time, in Household column, hints for peeling onions without injury or discomfort to one's eyes. I never found anything that would help until recently, and then learned through necessity that if onions are boiled five minutes (more or less) then put into cold water, the skins will slip off easily. I am looking forward to next fall's pickling with great relief.

Anyone who has had experience in peeling onions will appreciate this discovery of mine—if it be one.

Is parsnips and carrots are boiled until tender, then put in a colander and cold water run on them for a minute, the skins will slip off without trouble.

To Keep Cider. To keep cider good to drink for winter use, let cider work off a little, then put in 10 cents' worth white mustard seed and 5 cents' worth salicylic acid. This is for one barrel, and keeps it good.

Things Worth Knowing. Inexpensive Duster.—Get 10-cent dish mop (the fluffy kind), put a few drops of oil or furniture polish on it. Fine for moldings, doors and carved furniture. When soiled, is easily washed and renewed.

If sweet potatoes, when sliced to fry, are first dipped in thin molasses, the slices will brown quickly and evenly, far more so than the usual way of frying them. Try this method also with carrots and parsnips.

The Kiddies' Shoes. When children are getting fitted for shoes, have the salesman start with a size which he knows is too large and then work down to the right size.

The usual way is to do just the opposite, with the result that shoes which the children declared were "all right" while in the store are found to be too small at home. The reason is that when the shoe that is only a little larger feels comfortable, by contrast, though it may not be the proper size.

KEEP THE CHILDREN'S BOWELS CLEAN NOW

IF TONGUE IS COATED, STOMACH SOUR, BREATH FEVERISH, BOWELS CLOGGED, GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Children dearly love to take delicious "Syrup of Figs" and nothing else cleans and regulates their tender little stomachs, liver and bowels so promptly and thoroughly.

Children get bilious and constipated just like grown-ups. Then they get sick, the tongue is coated, stomach sour, breath bad; they don't eat or rest well; they become feverish, cross, irritable and don't want to play. Listen, mothers—for your child's sake don't force the little one to swallow nauseating castor oil, violent calomel or harsh irritants like Cathartic pills. A teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs will have your child smiling and happy again in just a few hours. Syrup of Figs will gently clean, sweeten and regulate the stomach, make the liver active and move on and out of the bowels all the constipated matter, the sour bile, the foul, clogged-up waste and poisons, without causing cramps or griping.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging or injuring your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful. Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna" prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious, reliable, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

MUCH ACCOMPLISHED BY AMERICAN BOARD

REV. J. L. BARTON OF BOSTON GIVES ADDRESS AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

WORK REVOLUTIONARY

Vast Changes Brought About in Turkey, India, Japan and China Through Teachings of Christian Missionaries.

Rev. J. L. Barton of Boston, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, told of the character and scope of the work of the mission board in an address at the Congregational church last evening. Dr. Barton is attending the missionary meeting now in session at Beloit.

Sweeping changes of a revolutionary character have been effected in the countries where there are missions under the direction of the American board. The missionaries bring about a change in the moral atmosphere of the country or locality in which they work which has resulted on the social customs, the intellectual life and the political movements.

Dr. Barton pointed to China as one of the nations where the Christians have met the fiercest opposition and where their victory has been the most complete. From the time they began their work there they were insistent in denouncing the custom of binding women's feet. In the face of all kinds of opposition on the part of the government which made one final attempt to expel the missionaries in 1900, this custom has now been entirely eradicated. Not only that, but laws have been enacted forbidding the practice.

By thus spreading the enlightenment in China the Christians have been responsible for a giant awakening. Never before in the history of any country has there been a people, four hundred million strong, that has thrown off an aristocratic form of government which has been in power for centuries, to adopt a democracy. Never before has there been such a revolution in the matter of education and morals.

Dr. Barton recalled the leniency with which the Manchus were treated by revolutionists after their abdication in favor of the new element. Through the influence of Dr. Sen, a Christian Chinese, the royal family and governing cast, numbering in the millions, was spared such a fate as a wholesale beheading, as would have been the solution in former times and were treated with the greatest leniency and consideration. Not only that, but the new president of China, not a Christian himself, in addressing the assembly, gave credit to the missionaries for much of the changes that have been effected.

Not only in China, but in Japan, India and in Turkey, have these results been attained. As one example Dr. Barton called attention to the new status of women in Japan as an indication of what the American board had accomplished. Until ten years ago the Japanese women were oppressed and degraded; now they are allowed the utmost freedom and liberty.

In Turkey the representatives of the American board would enter a locality in the mountains and would never be questioned by the natives in regard to outside affairs. No interest was shown in anything whatever beyond their own horizon. But with teaching and Christian instruction the people take on new life and become more inquisitive in regard to outside affairs. A traveler in Turkey can readily distinguish between the native and Christian villages by merely a glance at the outside appearance.

Dr. Barton stated that he was astonished if the board was not worried out the missionaries in Macedonia. He replied by saying that the Christians there were respected alike by Turks, Bulgars, Greeks and Servians. It made no difference which was in power, the missionaries had no cause for fear.

Dr. Barton outlined very briefly the organization which the American board maintained by which it is accomplishing these revolutionary changes in Asiatic countries. In addition to 600 highly educated and trained American men and women in the field in charge of the work, there are 5,000 natives in Turkey, India, Japan and China, many of them with university and college degrees who are aiding in the work by either teaching or preaching.

Recently the board has not worried out the missionaries in Macedonia. He replied by saying that the Christians there were respected alike by Turks, Bulgars, Greeks and Servians. It made no difference which was in power, the missionaries had no cause for fear.

At the service Sunday morning, Hon. S. B. Capen, president of the American board, was the speaker. Among other things of interest in connection with the mission work, he emphasized the fact that American business men and manufacturers could well afford to liberally support the missionary movement as purely a matter of business, for in every case trade has followed the missionary. Mr. Capen paid a sincere compliment to Hon. John M. Whitehead of this city, who has for many years been connected with the American board. Mr. Whitehead's counsel and advice has at all times been most valuable, said the speaker.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE EYE.

(By Howard L. Rahn.)

THE eyes is a small, glittering object which catches the rays of light, before they hit the ground and works them up into a crazy quilt. It also catches cinders, styes and catarracts, which it e-manages with feverish energy and never lets go of without a struggle.

The eye is located at the point where the brain begins and the nose leaves off, and is hung on a pivot which allows it to turn nervously on its axis and take in the skirt dance without the slightest exertion. Whenever the eye goes lame it can be hooked into the small end of a pair of opera glasses, which will enable it to enjoy the Apache glide with the utmost freedom.

Some people are so afraid that their eyes will give out at the psychological moment that they never go to comic opera without a pair of double-barreled opera glasses which have a magnifying power of 4,000 volts.

Nearly all eyes are equipped with a portable roof called the eyebrow, which can be raised or lowered at will without coming off. The beeting eyebrow is a close imitation of the string moustache, and can be curled down over the cheek bone in a very startling manner. There is also the vanishing type of eyebrow, which starts out boldly at the bridge of the nose and disappears in thin air.

The wink is a convulsive action of the eye, caused by the eyeball revolving rapidly, several times and stopping on dead center. Some people employ the wink as a substitute for an introduction, and are required to pay $10 and costs. If this treatment were more general there would be fewer muckers in green vests infesting the strict courts.

The evil eye is a variety which never sees any good in anybody except the undersigned. A person with an evil eye can sit in the front window and detect more crookedness than an investigating committee on the purity of the police. The best eye is the open-faced kind, which looks straight at you without dodging or hiding behind, a letter of recommendation.

STRENGTH

Without Overloading The Stomach

The business man, especially, needs food in the morning that will not overload the stomach, but give mental vigor for the day.

Much depends on the start a man gets each day, as to how he may expect to accomplish the work on hand.

He can't be alert, with a heavy, fried-meat-and-potatoes breakfast requiring "a lot of vital energy in digesting it."

A Calif. business man tried to find some food combination that would not overload the stomach in the morning, but that would produce energy.

He writes:

"For years I was unable to find a breakfast food that had nutrition enough to sustain a business man without overloading his stomach, causing indigestion and kindred ailments."

"Being a very busy and also a very nervous man, I decided to give up breakfast altogether. But luckily I was induced to try Grape-Nuts."

"Since that morning I have been a new man; can work without tiring, my head is clear and my nerves strong and quiet."

"I find four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with one of sugar and a small quantity of cold milk, is delicious as the cereal part of the morning meal, and invigorates me for the day's business."

Why do Brewers of Germany and England use only Brown Bottles?

Sunlight grows the hops, but spoils the brew.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives best protection against light.

In England and Germany the brewers won't use light glass bottles.

"Beer should not be exposed to the light, especially direct sunlight, as it will thereby be detrimentally affected, the light having an influence upon the albuminoids in the beer, causing the latter to become hazy."

You're welcome at the booze bazaar while you have got a roll. They'll say you are a shining star, a genial, princely soul. The low-browed gent who sells the suds will call you "Cap" or "Judge," while you have built in your dunder to buy his baneful budge. And all the mirthful hangers-on will cheer your wit and sense, while merrily the demijohn goes round at your expense. They'll greet with wide ecstatic grin the staliest of your jokes, while you have cash to buy the gin or fix the crowd with smokes. But when your little roll is lost, and you all busted are, there falls a chill ant-artic frost about the shirring bar. And when you fix your thirsty gaze upon the bottled shelf, the gent who smirked in other days, grows fiercely "Chase yourself!" The lookers eye you with disdain, who once said you were it, and grumble that you cause them pain, when you'd display your wit. The days when you showed up so strong no one can now recall; and if you hang around too long they'll push you through the wall. Good fellows go the same old gait, the gay, high-rolling clumps; and they will meet the same old fate, and bump the same old bumps.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Mother finds it takes two make an Argument.—Released March 10.

The STOLEN SINGER

by MARTHA DELLINGER

Agatha, fresh as the morning, stood in the doorway for a contemplative moment, before coming forward to take Jim's outstretched hand.

"Samson—short!" she exclaimed gaily. "I hardly know you, all fixed up like this."

"Oh, I look much better than this when I'm really dressed up, you know," Jim asserted. Agatha patted his knuckles indulgently, looked at the thinness and whiteness of the hand, and shook her head.

"Not gaining enough yet," she said. "That isn't the right color for a hand."

"It needs to be held longer."

"Oh, no, it needs more quiet. Fewer visitors, no talking, and plenty of fresh milk and eggs."

Jimmy almost stamped his foot. "Down with eggs!" he cried. "And milk, too! I'm going to institute a mutiny. Excuse me. I know I'm visiting and ought to be polite, but no more invalid's food for me. Handy Andy and I are going out to kill a moose and eat it—eh, Andy?"

But Hand was gone. Agatha sat down in a big rocker at the other window. "In that case," she said demurely, "we'll all have to be thinking of Lynn and New York and work."

Jim shamelessly turned feather. "Oh, no," he cried. "I'm very ill. I'm not able to go to Lynn. Besides, my time isn't up yet. This is my vacation. He looked up smiling into Agatha's face, innocuous as a boy of seven."

"Do you always take such—such venturesome holidays?" she asked.

"I never took any before; at least, not what I call holidays," he said. "If you don't come over here and sit near me, I shall get up and go over to you. And Andy says I'm very wobbly on my legs. I might by accident drop into your lap."

Agatha pushed her chair over toward James, and before she could sit down he had drawn it still closer to his own. "The doctor says my hand has to be held," he assured her, as he got firm hold of hers.

"For shame!" she cried. "Mustn't tell fibs."

"Tell me," he begged, "is this your house, really a truly?" It brought, as he knew it would, her ready smile.

"Yep," she nodded.

"And is that your tree out there?"

"Ah!" he sighed. "It's great! It's Paradise. I've dreamed of just such a heavenly place. And Andy says we've been here two weeks."

"Yes—and a little more."

"My holiday half gone!" His mood suddenly changed from its jocund and boyish manner, and he turned earnestly toward Agatha.

"I don't know, dear girl, all that has happened since that night—with you—on the water. Hand shuts me off most villainously. But I know it's Heaven being here, with Aleck and every one so good to me, and you! You've come back, somehow, like a reality from my dreams. I watch for you. You're all I think of, whether I'm awake or asleep."

Agatha earnestly regarded his frank face, with its laughing, true eyes. "Jimmy," she said—he had begged her to call him that—"it seems as if I, too, had known you a long time. More than these little two weeks."

"It is more; you said so," put in Jim.

"Yes; a little more. And if it hadn't been for you, I shouldn't be here, or anywhere. I often think of that."

"You see," he cried. "I had to have you, even if I followed you half-way round the globe; even if I had to jump into the sea. Kismet—you can't escape me!"

But Agatha was only half smiling. "No," she protested, "it is not that. I owe."

Jim put his fingers on her lips. "Tut, tut! Dear girl, you owe nothing, except to your own courage and good swimming. But as for me, why, you know I'm yours."

"James," Agatha could not help preaching a bit, "just because we happen to be the actors in an adventure" is no reason, no real reason, why we should be silly about each other. We don't have to end the story that way."

"Oh, don't we? Well, see!" shouted Jim. "And I'm not silly, if some other people are. I don't see why I should be cheated out of a perfectly good climax, if you put it that way, any more than the next fellow. Agatha, dearest—"

But she wouldn't listen to him. "No, no," she protested, slowly but earnestly. "Look here, Mr. James Hambleton, of Lynn! I promise to do anything, or everything, that you honestly want, after you get well. I'll listen to you then. But I'm not going to let a man who is just out of a delirium make love to me."

"But I'm not just out. I only had a whack on the head, and that's nothing. I'm strong as an ox. I'm saner than anybody. Do listen to me, Agatha."

"No—no. I mustn't."

"But tell me, dear. You're free? You're not?" he searched for the word that suited his mood—"you're not plighted?"

She smiled. "No, I'm not plighted."

"Ah!" he chorled, and seized both her hands, putting them to his lips. She stood over him, looking down tenderly.

"Time for your broth, Mr. Hambleton, and Mr. Straker wants to know if he can see you," interrupted Mr. Hand.

"Can't see him, Andy. I'm very busy," began Jim; then added, "By the way, who is Mr. Straker?"

"Tell him he may come in for a few minutes," Mr. Hand, directed Agatha. Presently the manager was being introduced in the proper manner to the invalid. Agatha, knowing James would need protection from quizzing, stayed by.

"Now, tell me," wheedled Mr. Straker, "the whole story just exactly as it happened to you, please. It's very important that I should know all the details."

So Jimmy, aided now and then by Agatha, delivered a Straker-sized version of the wreck and the arrival at Llion.

"But before that," questioned the manager. "How did you happen to be on the Jeanne d'Arc?"

For the first time James hesitated. Not even Agatha knew that part of the story. "I was picked up by the Jeanne d'Arc in New York harbor," he replied slowly.

Mr. Straker frowned. "How—picked up?"

"Out of the water."

"What were you in the water for?"

"I had dropped off a tug."

"What for?"

"Because I wanted the yacht to pick me up."

At this point Mr. Straker directed a commiserating look at Agatha. It said "Crazy" as plain as words.

"What were you on the tug for?"

"I had followed the yacht."

"What for?"

The pause before James' next answer was apparent. When it came, there came with it that same seven-year-old look of smiling ingenuousness. "I just wanted to see what they were going to do with Miss Redmond."

"Jimmy Christmas!" exploded Mr. Straker. "Any more kinks in this story? How'd you know they'd stolen Miss Redmond?"

And so Jimmy had to tell it all, with the abominable Straker growing more and more excited every minute, and Agatha standing mute and awestruck, looking at him. It was plain that Jimmy, for the moment, had the upper hand. "And that's about all," he laughed.

"What on earth, man, is the matter with you?" fumed Straker. "Didn't you know there were a hundred chances to one the yacht wouldn't pick you up?"

Jimmy nodded, unabashed. "One chance is good enough for me. Nothing can kill me this trip, I tell you. I'm good for anything. Lucky stars over me. I knew it all the time."

Straker turned a disgusted face toward Agatha. "He's crazy as a loon! Isn't he?" he questioned glumly. But Jimmy knew his man.

"No, not crazy, Mr. Straker. Only a touch of sun! And it's glorious, isn't it, Miss Redmond?"

She loved him for his boyish laughter, for the rollicking spirit in his voice, but her eyes suddenly filled as she pondered the meaning back of his extraordinary story. With Mr. Straker gone at last, it was she who came to Jim with outstretched hands.

"You mean you heard me call for help, there on the hill?"

"Yep," he answered, suddenly sheepish.

"And you followed to rescue me if you could?"

"Yep—of course."

"Ah, James! Why did you do it?"

Jim's small-boy expression beamed from his eyes. "I followed the Voice and the Face—as I told you once before. Don't you remember?"

"I remember. But why?"

His seven-year-old mood was suddenly touched with poetic dignity. "I could naught else," he said, looking into her face. It was all tenderness; and she did not resist when he drew her gently down, till her lips touched his.

"Which is impossible—"

"Then the money goes into the family, of course, as my dot. Or—or, if I should die—in that case Stephen inherits the money. And there is no doubt but that Stephen needs money."

Aleck pondered for several minutes, while grave shadows threatened his face. But presently his smiling, unquenchable good temper came to the surface, and he gleefully tucked Melanie's hand under his arm.

"As I said before, you need a husband very badly."

"Oh, I don't know," she laughed.

The result of Aleck's moment of grave thought came a few days later, with the arrival of two quietly-dressed men. He told Melanie that one man was her chauffeur for the white machine, and the other was an extra hand he had engaged for the return trip on the Sea Gull. The chauffeur, however, for one reason or another, rarely took the wheel, and could have been seen walking at a distance behind Melanie whenever she stirred abroad. The extra hand for the Sea Gull did just the same as the chauffeur.

From the day of the arrival of the manager, Mr. Hand's rather mysterious but friendly temper underwent a change for the worse. He not only continued silent, which might easily be counted a virtue, but he became almost sulky, which could only be called a crime. There was no bantering with Sallie in the kitchen, scarcely a friendly smile for Agatha herself. Mr. Hand was markedly out of sorts.

On the morning following Mr. Straker's request that Hand should repair the car, the manager found him tinkering in the carriage shed near the church. The car was jacked up on a horse-block, while one wheel lay near the road. Mr. Hand was as grimy and oily as the law allows, working over the machinery with a sort of vicious earnestness. Mr. Straker hovered around for a few moments, then addressed Hand in that tone of pseudo-geniality that marks a certain type of politician.

"Look here, colonel, I understand you were in the employ of that French anarchist."

It was an unlucky moment for attack, though Mr. Straker did not at once perceive it. Hand carefully wiped the oil from a neat ring of metal, slid down on his back under the car and screwed on a nut. As Mr. Straker, hands in pockets and feet wide apart, watched the mechanic, there came through the silence and the sweet air of the sound of thrushes calling from the wood beyond. Mr. Straker craned his head to look out at the church, then at the low stone wall, as if he expected to see the songsters performing on a stage before a row of footlights. He turned back to Mr. Hand.

When the Sun Will Die.

It may be said unqualifiedly that the sun, like every other thing connected with the present order, will finally cease to be what it is today. The time will most surely come when the sun will have ceased to throw off light and heat. Long before that happens, however, the earth and other planets will have become "dead worlds," like the moon—no life of any sort upon them. It has been calculated that the sun will cease to throw out its heat somewhere about seven million of years from now.

She was a little afraid of him.

"Let us go on the balcony first," she suggested. She had a scheme.

On the balcony with HER! His heart beat like anything.

They strolled to the balcony. Millions of miles overhead were stars. Hundreds of feet below were the waters of the bay.

"Look down," she said softly, and when he looked over the edge she gently but firmly pushed him. She was rather a strong girl. Fatally the distant splash came to her ears. She returned to look for Captain Spondoozer.

DINNER STORIES

"I was very happy," said the confessor, "when, after years of wooing, she finally said 'yes.'"

"But why did you break the engagement so soon after?" asked his friend.

"Man, it was she that dissolved it. 'Really?' said the friend. 'How did that happen?'"

"It was due to my accustomed absent-mindedness. When, a few days later, I called at her home I again asked her to marry me."

The best man at a wedding noticed that one of the guests, a youth of melancholy mien, did not seem to be having a very enjoyable time. He was wandering about morosely, as if he had a relative in the Mexican war zone. The best man, being a jovial person undertook to cheer up the mournful member.

"Pardon me, but have you kissed the bride yet?" he queried by way of introduction.

"Er—not lately," replied the gloomy one, with an added gloom darkening the veil of sorrow on his face.

"Jim Keene was an optimist," a broker said sadly of the dead financier. "He wasn't scrambling about the vice and cruelty and hypocrisy of modern times—declaring the world to be worse today than it was 5,000 years ago."

"Keene and I once lunched together at a smart Fifth Avenue restaurant, and though our lunch was a simple one, the bill came to $11. Keene showed the bill to me with a smile, and I said:

"The high cost of living. It certainly costs a lot more to live now than it did when you and I were boys."

"Well," said Keene, it's worth more."

I have taken six bottles and I feel strong and as well as ever."

The Timid Man Who Was Afraid to Buy From a Realty Broker.

One evening a man read in these columns of just the kind of a property he wanted advertised by a good sized realty broker.

"But," said he to his wife, "I'm afraid of the brokers. I wish I knew the owner. Maybe I could do better with him, because this realty man's commission and advertising expenses have to be tacked on to the real value of this property."

But he was WRONG, DEAD WRONG.

No reliable realty man's expenses are "tacked on" to the value of a piece of property.

They are TAKEN OFF after the owner and agent have talked the matter over and decided upon the LOWEST FAIR PRICE at which the property may be sold.

The RELIABLE realty man KNOWS VALUES and is not going to jeopardize his reputation and POSSIBLE FUTURE SALES to YOU and YOUR FRIENDS by charging you more than the property is worth.

It is to his interest to make QUICK SALES and LOTS OF THEM, and in order to do this he must be able to offer the LOWEST PRICE and BEST TERMS he can get the owner to agree to.

Now just a word of ADVICE to the timid man: When you see advertised in THE GAZETTE the piece of property that appeals to YOU, don't let the grass grow under your feet, but communicate with the advertiser AT ONCE, as over six thousand other heads of families will have copies of The Gazette containing THE SAME ADVERTISEMENT and any one of them may want the same piece of property.
